Introduction

Hello and welcome back to Second Chance to Live my friend. I am happy to have you around my table. On February 6, 2007 I created Second Chance to Live, at the encouragement of a friend; to share my experience, strength and hope through writing and publishing articles.

In July of 2011 a friend suggested that I begin making video presentations of my articles. On July 31, 2014 I established a You Tube channel and began making video presentations of my articles. I began creating these various presentations to make the information available in a video and audio format.

I began creating these presentations to make the information available for individuals who learn through watching and listening.

During the past 30 months I have created 250 video presentations of my articles, which I have uploaded to You Tube. I have created an archive of the presentations that I have created and placed them in categories. In this e-book I am going to offer a selection of those video presentations.

Although many of the titles of the video presentations contain traumatic brain injury in the title, the messages with in the video presentations are universal. The messages can benefit anyone facing adversity.

Earlier this year I created an archive of my video presentations and created categories with in those archives. To access the complete archive of my video presentations, you may visit this link Complete List of Video Presentations.

As you watch and listen to these video presentations and questions come to mind, please send those questions to me. All questions are good question. You may send those questions or comments to me by clicking on this link: Contact Page.

I look forward to hearing from you.

Craig

You have my permission to share my articles and or video presentations with anyone you believe could benefit, however please attribute me as being the author of the article (s) video presentation (s), and provide a link back to Second Chance to Live . In the event that you have questions, please send those questions to me. All questions are good questions. Thank you. I look forward to hearing from you.

I want to thank several people for their encouragement and help. These individuals have encouraged me to start and continue writing. One such individual is Dr. Tony Morris. Dr. Morris is the individual that encouraged me to start a blog as he said, "Your material is ripe for a blog". I am so happy that I followed his encouragement and started Second Chance to Live on February 6, 2007.

I want to thank several of the people that I met through Second Chance to Live that have helped me to learn about and navigate the world of the blogosphere: Laura Benjamin, Judith Blair and Raincoaster. I want to thank Judith and Lorrie for helping me with the workings of my Wordpress blog. Their time, kindness and willingness to help me have been unending during the course of the past 82 months.

I want to thank my brother Skip for his help and suggestions to make Second Chance to Live more streamlined. I want to thank my Mom as she has been one of my biggest cheerleaders. Thank you Mom and Skip. I want to thank my friend John Eerenberg in particular for helping me with learning how to create this ebook. He has also helped me in so many other ways in my development and use of my computer. Thank you John!

In the words of Mr. John Bradshaw, "We stand on the shoulders of people who have come before us." I want to thank Mr. Bradshaw, Jane Middleton-Moz, Alice Miller, Virginia Satir, Margaret and Jordan Paul as well as a host of other authors who have shared their wisdom with me over the years through their books and tapes. They have helped me to put words to concepts that helped me to find my way on my journey.

I want to thank the many people who have left comments and sent in testimonials surrounding my articles and the impact that Second Chance to Live has had upon their lives and families. Your comments and testimonials have served to encourage, motivate and empower my path and journey with Second Chance to Live. Your words of encouragement have served to confirm what God placed in my heart. Thank you. I am so glad that I took the risk to start Second Chance to Live nearly 8 years ago.

You have my permission to share my articles and or video presentations with anyone you believe could benefit, however please attribute me as being the author of the article (s) video presentation (s), and provide a link back to Second Chance to Live . In the event that you have questions, please send those questions to me. All questions are good questions. Thank you. I look forward to hearing from you.

Traumatic Brain Injury Survivor Support Group/ Meetings

Posted by Second Chance to Live on August 5, 2007

I am happy you are attending support group meetings. I want to be a part of your continued participation in those support groups. In that spirit I want to encourage, motivate and empower your process by sharing my experience, strength and hope with you. Consequently, I want to participate in your process by making material from Second Chance to Live available to be used in your support group meetings. You are free to use material from Second Chance to Live to generate discussion and to empower the members with in your support group meetings.

In the spirit of sharing my material with your support group meetings I need for your to honor several requests. Do not edit any of the material you use from Second Chance to Live. I spend many hours designing articles for Second Chance to Live in such a way to convey a specific message. Consequently, to change the structure of my material would be an infringement of copyright law. I need for you to honor my request so as to not dilute message. Please do not take snippets from my articles on Second Chance to Live to then copy and paste into any other format. Thank you.

Secondly, I need to be credited as the author of the material that you use from Second Chance to Live. Therefore, I would ask that you include a copy of my Resource Box on each page of material that you make available to each support group member. The Resource Box is to be placed at the bottom of each page of material that you provide to the support group members. Below you will find my Resource Box.

My First Department of Vocational Rehabilitation Experience Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on August 16, 2011

For many years I felt like some one all dressed up with no where to go, although I diligently attempted to succeed in my academic and vocational pursuits.

While working as a Department of Vocational Rehabilitation counselor, I was made a client of the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation. I was then terminated as a counselor and continued the process as client.

My Second Department of Vocational Rehabilitation Experience Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on August 18, 2011

Approximately 4 years after I completed my First Department of Vocational Rehabilitation Experience, I found myself once again unemployed and with little prospects.

Because of the ongoing cycle of getting and then losing jobs, I decided to re-apply, for the 3rd time for SSDI and also to re-apply to the Department of Vocational Rehabilitation in the city I had moved to begin the new job..

EEG's, Neuro Psychological Evaluations and Brain Injury Recovery Outcomes Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on December 10, 2014

In my experience, I have undergone 3 EEG's and 2 Neuro Psychological Exams over the course of the past 47 years.

The EEG's and Neuro Psychological Exams verified the impact of the traumatic brain injury that I sustained when I was 10 years old. The results showed that I would probably not be able to succeed beyond high school academically. In 1993 I underwent another EEG and a Neuro Psychological Evaluation. In 1998 I was deemed, after a Department of Vocational Rehabilitation evaluation process; to be unemployable.

I am glad that I did not allow the findings and predictions of these tests and evaluations to dissuade me from following my dreams and learning how to use my passion through my gifts, talents and abilities in ways that would work for me. I am glad that I did not give up on the process, a loving God or myself, for I found that more would be revealed in time.

In this video presentation, I further explain my experience with EEG's, Neuro Psychological Evaluations and brain injury recovery outcomes.

Traumatic Brain Injury Recovery Predictions — What May be Limiting Your Recovery Process? Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on November 21, 2014

Several days ago I wrote Traumatic Brain Injury Recovery Predictions – What May be Limiting Your Recovery Process. In today's article, I would like to share what I discovered through my process.

In my experience, I discovered that there were 3 contributing factors, that in effect; kept me focused on what I could not change. In my experience, I discovered that these 3 factors, in effect; kept me fighting against myself, instead of teaching me how to champion the gains that I was making as an individual who had been living with the impact of a traumatic brain injury.

As you watch and listen to this video presentation, may you be encouraged to change your focus from what you can not change to what you can accomplish with in your set of circumstances. As you read, watch and listen to this video presentation, may you be encouraged to stop fighting against yourself and start championing the gains that you are making as an individual living with a traumatic brain injury.

Traumatic Brain Injury and Transition Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on February 27, 2012

Several years ago I wrote an article by the titles of Traumatic Brain Injury and Transition. Because I have found that some people learn better through listening and watching — instead of by reading – I also share my articles in a video presentation format.

In my experience, I discovered that I needed to move through a transition process, before I could stop fighting against myself. In my experience, I discovered that although I thought that my hopes and dreams had perished because of my traumatic brain injury, my transition process revealed a new truth. In my experience, I discovered that my hopes and dreams experienced a sort of resurrection.

What I thought had perished took on new life.

In my experience, I discovered that my hopes and dreams took on a different form. A different form than I had once envisioned for myself. In my experience, I discovered that I could experience my hopes and dreams beyond my hopes and dreams. In my experience, I discovered that I could live the life that I had imagined. In my experience, I discovered that my hopes and dreams could take on new meaning.

“When one door of happiness closes, another opens; but often we look so long at the closed-door that we do not see the one which has been opened for us.” Helen Keller

Living with a Traumatic Brain Injury and Facing Walls Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on September 10, 2012

As I shared in one of my most recent articles, I have been sick for about 10 days. In my experience, I have found that when I am not feeling well I am more susceptible to bleak and stinking thinking.

During the past 10 days I have struggled with such bleak and stinking thinking. In my thinking I felt as though I had come up against a wall that I could not see beyond what I perceived as a wall. Yesterday, I called a friend and she encouraged me to write about the struggle that I found myself facing because of the wall.

As I thought about what she encouraged me to do, I remembered an article that I wrote almost 5 1/2 years ago. As I re-read my article, I found myself being encouraged. My hope is that you will also be encouraged as you read my article – Living a Traumatic Brain Injury and Facing Walls – when you are faced with a wall (s) as you live your life.

Posted by Second Chance to Live on October 31, 2011

This is the 3rd and final installment in this video series – How I Overcame Being Bullied.

In this part of the video presentation, I share what I have learned to overcome erroneous beliefs – beliefs I believe that led me to believe that I deserved to be bullied.

Although the video is nearly 10 minutes, I would strongly encourage you to listen to the complete presentation. I believe the information will help you to understand, address, confront and overcome the affects of bullying.

What Set me Up to Believe that I Deserved to be Bullied Part 1 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on November 9, 2011

Several days ago I appeared on a radio program titled, “Stop Bullying”. During the radio program, I shared what I found that set me up to believe that I deserved to be bullied, both at home and away from home.

I shared my thoughts from an article that I had recently written on the topic of Being Different and Being Bullied. In part 2 of Being Different and Being Bullied, I share a list of articles that I have written during the past 4 1/2 years. The information contained in the articles helped me address my distorted beliefs — that set me up to be bullied — and helped me stop the cycle of being bullied.

In yesterday’s video presentation, I shared the 1st of those articles, Who Am I? In that presentation, I spoke to the need to set, have and maintain healthy boundaries. In today’s video presentation I will share what I discovered – through my recovery process – that set me up to believe that I deserved to be bullied.

What Set me Up to Believe that I Deserved to be Bullied Part 2 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on November 10, 2011

Yesterday I made the first part of this video presentation to share what set me up to believe that I some how deserved to be bullied.

In the 2nd part of this presentation, I continue to share information that has empowered my process and given me hope. In the event that you find yourself being bullied – because of your brain injury, an invisible disability or because of some other quality that makes you different please take the time to watch both parts of this video presentation.

I believe the information that is presented in Part 1 and now in Part 2 of this video presentation will empower your journey and instill hope into your process. We no longer have to be bullied.

Is the Group that You are In Hurting You? — Are you being Bullied? Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on April 30, 2013

During the course of the past 5 or 6 days I have wrote a 3 part article series, Is the Group that You are In Hurting You? – Are you being Bullied?

I wrote this article series to share what I have learned through my experience, that I was unaware of for many years. The information in this series has helped me to recognize and make healthier choices for myself as I interact with individuals and groups of individuals. May you also be encouraged my friend.

Traumatic Brain Injury and Suicide Video Presentation Part 1

Posted by Second Chance to Live on February 1, 2012

This morning I felt led to create a video presentation of a 2 article that I wrote in November 2007. The article, Traumatic Brain Injury and Suicide.

Please do not give up on hope. Dark times will end and dark clouds will pass. Rest assured my friend. More will be revealed to you in time, as more is being revealed to me my friend.

And please do not use a permanent solution for a temporary problem. More will be revealed in time.

Are You Driven to be Perfect? – There is hope – The Principle of Progress not Perfection Video Presentation Part 1`

Posted by Second Chance to Live on September 7, 2011

For many years of my life, I cowered under the cruel taskmaster called perfectionism. Under the taskmaster I was enslaved by a struggle to be accepted by performance. I discovered that I had become what I heard Terry Kellogg describe as a human doing. As a human doing I sought to prove my worth, value and significance through measuring up to the demands and expectations of what other people expected and demanded of me.

Nevertheless, many of my efforts to satisfy the taskmaster were met with dissatisfaction and disapproval. What made matters more difficult — living under the tutelage of the taskmaster — was that the taskmaster would invariably either raise or move the bar of expectation or demand each time that I thought I had met the implicit or explicit expectation or demand. In this video presentation series, I explain what helped to set me free

In the event that you find yourself being driven to be perfect, my hope is that as you watch and listen to this presentation that you will find freedom from the taskmaster called perfectionism.

Creating a Destiny with Puzzle Pieces and Threads Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on February 17, 2014

Yesterday I published an article on Second Chance to Live. Today, I created a video presentation of this article. Below is an excerpt from the article:

“Hello and welcome back to Second Chance to Live my friend. I am happy to see that you decided to stop by to visit with me. Thank you. In my keynote presentations and the workshops that I lead I speak to the principle, the visual of a puzzle. Living life can be likened to a puzzle. The puzzle is made up of individual pieces, that by themselves may make little sense, but collectively they create a beautiful story. Each individual puzzle piece created by a different set of circumstances, lessons, opportunities and possibilities.

Living life can be likened to the creation of a tapestry. One side only showing jumbled threads, while on the other side something of great worth and value is being designed. Each thread woven together intricately. Each thread given to empower. Each thread birthing hope. Each thread providing grace. Each thread preparing a destiny. Each thread providing a legacy. Even the threads containing apparent discouragement, disappointment and disillusionment; even the threads that contain confusion and make little or no sense.

Below are several quotes that help me to see the value of each puzzle piece and every thread in place.”

Neuroplasticity, Muscle memory, Coordination, Agility and Creating Hope Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on February 10, 2013

You may not be aware, but I have lived with a tremor in my left hand for most of my life which is attributed to my traumatic brain injury. My left hand shakes a bit when I am tired.

Last year I wrote the article, Neuroplasticity, Muscle memory, Coordination, Agility and Creating Hope to share what has and what continues to help me in my ongoing recovery process.

According to MedicineNet.com definition, “neuroplasticity is the brains ability to reorganize itself by forming new neural connections through out life. Neuroplasticity allows the neurons (nerve cells) in the brain to compensate for injury and disease and to adjust their activities in response to new situations or to changes in their environment.”

Are you Carrying your Parents Shame? – Whose Shame are you Carrying? Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on March 24, 2013

In today's article I am going to introduce the article: Living with a brain injury – Whose Shame are you Carrying? in video format.

In my experience, I needed to address this question to be able to be able to begin to love and accept myself as an individual living with a brain injury and an invisible disability. .

My motivation is to provide insights to the parents of individuals living with brain injuries. My motive is to provide awareness.

The beauty in living is that we can make a decision to change our behavior at any time. The process of behavior modification usually begins with awareness, that is followed by acceptance and results in action.

Awareness provides the opportunity to address whatever is not in our best interest or in the best interest of the people we love. Acceptance acts like a balm to soften the walls of our resistance and bring us to a place of action.

The action that we take provides the momentum that resolves our guilt and shame.

How to Create and Maintain a Budget while Living on a Fixed Income Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on October 24, 2014

Several days ago, I wrote the above article. To provide the information to individuals who learn more effectively through watching and listening, I create video presentations of my articles. Today, I am introducing the video presentation of the article. Below is an excerpt from the article my friend.

“Hello and welcome back to Second Chance to Live my friend. I am happy to have you around my table. Because of the financial insecurity that I experienced — for many years — once I began living on a fixed income I decided to set up a budget. I did so to avoid continuing financial insecurity.

In July 2012 I wrote an article to share what has helped me to avoid financial insecurity for over a decade. I learned some of these principles from my Mom and then adapted them to fit my particular set of circumstances. As you read through the article, the principles applied may also help you to avoid financial insecurity.

In the event that the principles with in the below article help you, please let me know my friend. Thank you.”

The principles that I share in this article can benefit anyone, regardless of whether you are living on a fixed income or not. The principles are helping me to be financially disciplined and responsible.

Traumatic Brain Injury and Life Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on July 13, 2014

Several days ago I re-posted the article, Traumatic Brain Injury and Life under the above title: Life may not be the party we had hoped for, but...

I re-posted the article under this title because I need to remember that I always have a choice, regardless. I need to remember that it is not as important as what has happened or happens to us, as how we respond to what happens to us. As I engage in what happens, I learn and grow from what happens to me, instead of feeling defeated.

“Hi, and welcome back to Second Chance to Live. You are always welcome around my table. I have been thinking about the nature of life. We may not have chosen to be brought into this world. We may not like the way life looks today. We may be a traumatic or an acquired brain injury survivor. But what of that...”

“Do what you can, with what you have, where you are.” Theodore Roosevelt

We may think that life is not fair. We may believe that our life no longer matters. We may want to give up on ourselves. We may want to blame our circumstances. We may feel stuck in the ashes of our disappointment. We may find ourselves arguing with God. We may be angry at the world, just because...

Finding Wholeness in Our Body, Soul and Spirit Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on November 11, 2012

In today's article, I am going to introduce a video presentation of my article, Finding Wholeness in Our Body, Soul and Spirit.

In my experience, I have found that living as a human being involves functioning in those dimensions. In my experience and through my studies I have found that these dimensions involve my body (the vehicle helps me to experience my world), my soul (who and what makes me uniquely me as an individual) and my spirit (the part of me that enables me to connect to what is not seen).

In my experience, I have found that independently these dimensions limit my capacity to live my life, however collectively these dimensions (body, soul and spirit) synergize my capacity to live my life.

In this video presentation, I share what I have learned through my process. To watch the video presentation you may click on the following link: Finding Wholeness in Our Body, Soul and Spirit Video Presentation

Empowering Your Life — The Difference between Humility and Humiliation Part 1 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on October 12, 2012

Several years ago I wrote an article titled, Live Beyond Limitations.

This article was divided into 4 Parts. In April of 2012 I edited and updated Live Beyond Limitations and wrote a 2 Part article, Empowering Your Life — The Difference between Humility and Humiliation.

In the past 3 or 4 weeks, Empowering Your Life — The Difference between Humility and Humiliation Part 1 and Empowering Your Life — The Difference between Humility and Humiliation Part 2 have been among the highest read articles that I have written for Second Chance to Live.

Because of this interest, I want to make the article accessible to individuals who learn through watching and listening. Consequently, I have made the decision to create a video presentation of both parts of the article.

Today I will create a video presentation of the 1st Part of the article. To listen to and watch the 1st Part of the presentation, you may click on the following link Empowering Your Life — The Difference between Humility and Humiliation Part 1 Video Presentation.

Forgiving Yourself and Finding Freedom Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on May 15, 2013

In today's article I am going to introduce the video presentation of Forgiving Yourself and Finding Freedom. Below is an excerpt from the article.

“In today's article, I want to share some thing with you that helps me to remember to be kind to myself. As you watch this video presentation may you too remember to be kind to yourself.

For many years of my life I berated myself for not being enough. I chided myself for not being enough because I did not live up to expectations – other people's expectations and my expectations. For many years I used my sense of not being enough as a reflection of not merely making mistakes – for not measuring up to expectations — but of being a mistake. Consequently, in my quest to eliminate my sense of being a mistake, I was driven to do more, to be more, in an attempt to be enough, however more never seemed to be enough.”

Understanding the People we Interact with as Traumatic Brain Injury Survivors Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on April 16, 2014

In August of 2007 I wrote an article that helped me to understand the people that I interact with as an individual living with an invisible disability. The information in this article helped me to sort out what I had been experiencing for many years. The article helped me to begin to accept myself.

Recently, I realized that I had not made a video presentation of the series. Consequently, I made a video presentation of the 4 part series I would encourage you to watch all 4 parts as each part further clarifies what I discovered that helped me to begin to accept myself. With this being said, you may click on the below links to each part of the video series.

What Helped Me to Stop Fighting Against Myself as a Traumatic Brain Injury Survivor Part 1 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on April 27, 2014

As you may have noticed I recently finished finished a 4 part video series on the topic of Understanding the People we Interact with as Traumatic Brain Injury Survivors. As I shared in the series, we as individuals living with invisible disabilities need to be aware of our reality.

In the 4 Part video series I spoke to how individuals in 4 different groups interact with us. In the series, I shared with you how being aware of these interactions can serve to either bewilder or empower us. If bewildered, we can find ourselves feeling victimized, ostracized and excluded. On the other hand, by being aware of our realities, we can find ourselves empowered by respecting our limitations and by creating win/win outcomes.

In my article What Helped me to Accept Myself as a Traumatic Brain Injury Survivor I shared that there were 2 article series that helped me to accept myself as a traumatic brain injury survivor. In today's article I will share the 1st Part of the 2nd article series in video format. In my experience, I discovered that denial has been one of my biggest enemies in my ability to accept myself. I also discovered that denial kept me joining in with the chorus of individuals who criticized and berated me.

What I share in this 2 Part article series helped me accept myself and in the process stop fighting against myself. What I share in this series helps me to keep from being lulled back into a denial system that seeks to minimize, marginalize, dismiss and discount who I am as an individual living with a traumatic brain injury survivor and an invisible disability. As an individual living with a traumatic brain injury living and an invisible disability I would encourage you to watch this 2 Part series.

I believe the information with in this 2 Part series will help you to grow in self acceptance. I believe that the information presented with in this 2 Part series will help you to stop fighting against yourself.

What Helped Me to Stop Fighting Against Myself as a Traumatic Brain Injury Survivor Part 2 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on April 30, 2014

Recently, I published and presented the 1st part of the 2 part video presentation of my article, Having an Invisible Disability – The Consequence of Denying my Reality. In Part 2 of the video presentation I share what I discovered that helped me to stop fighting against myself. In my experience, I had to become aware of what I had been doing to myself; because of denial, so that I could break free from affect denial was having on my life.

Through being aware of denial's strategies, I was able to discover what kept me stuck for many years. Through staying aware, I was able to stop feeling responsible for other people's inability to accept my reality. Through staying aware of my reality, I was able to see that I could be responsible to other people, without being responsible for what they choose to believe. Through staying aware, I was able to begin to recognize where people ended and where I begin. Through staying aware, I was able to begin to see myself as the solution, not the problem.

Through being and staying aware, I am able to use my once distracted and depleted time and energy to pursue my destiny. Through being and staying aware of my reality, I am able to see myself as an empowered individual, instead of as a victim of a traumatic brain injury. Through being and staying aware of my reality, I am able to use my freedom to explore as an empowered individual. Through being and staying aware of my reality, I am able to use my time and energy to develop my gifts, talents and abilities — in ways that work for me.

Living with an Invisible Disability — Taking Back my Power Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on September 22, 2013

In today's article, I want to share a video presentation of an article that I wrote several days ago. I will include an excerpt from the article below:

I have been thinking about some thing that I would like to share with you. As an individual living with an invisible disability, I have found myself feeling shame for my deficits and limitations when I am around people who hold me accountable for things they do not understand.

When I was in graduate school, one of my professors encouraged us to encourage the people we would work with to educate people concerning their disabilities. What he shared with us has stuck with me. As an individual living with an invisible disability, who is learning how to read social nuance, subtitles, and non-verbal communication I have found that by sharing that with people, I am empowered.”

Second Chance to Live — Action Steps Revisited — An Overview Part 1 Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on July 20, 2012

In today's article, I am going to be introducing the 1st part of the article series, Second Chance to Live – Action Steps Revisited. I wrote this article originally in May 2008 and felt led to share this as an addendum to my last 2 part article series, Accepting Ourselves when Family and Friends Can Not.

Because of the length of the original article, Second Chance to Live – Action Steps, I made the decision to break the article into 2 Parts.

In Part 1 of this article series, I am share an overview of the Action Steps. In Part 2 I will give a synopsis of the 12 Action Steps.

Learning How to Be at Peace with Ourselves Video Presentation

Posted by Second Chance to Live on November 27, 2013

Several days ago I wrote an article, Learning How to Be at Peace with Ourselves. To make the article available to individuals who learn through watching and listening, I create video presentations of my articles. To date I have created 180 video presentation that are located in my Site Map for my Video Presentations. In today's article, I will introduce the video presentation of this article.

Below is an excerpt from Learning How to Be at Peace with Ourselves:

“I have been thinking about a conversation that I had with a friend the other night. During our conversation he shared with me that there are people with certain traits that really annoy him. He went on to share that he recognizes that he himself once had those similar traits. As we spoke, I shared something with him that I had learned about myself.

I shared with him that unless I make peace with the traits that I see in other people — that I do not like or did not like in myself – I will not be at peace with myself. Consequently, when I recognize traits that I do not like in other people, I need to examine why I do not like those traits. In my experience, I discovered that I needed to be honest with myself to be at peace.”
